Release Overview

Channel Foundations

The following Channel Sales Manager Core changes will support forthcoming features and functionality for channel-specific integrations:

- Functionality has been added to support the storing of channel credentials such as user IDs, passwords, and secret keys against sales channel records, rather than API sets. As part of this, a new Credentialing Sales Channel field has been added to the CSM Sales Channel table. This will allow users to indicate that a particular sales channel's API functions are to be run according to the credentials of another channel. Future channel-specific CSM releases will support this functionality, according to each channel's particular credentialing requirements.
- A new Long Comment BLOB field has been added to the CSM Order Document and CSM Order Archive Document tables to support the retrieval and storage of order messages that are greater than 250 characters.
- Integration events have been added to support an upcoming BigCommerce integration

Corrections

- A number of CSM objects had code that was not in compliance with Microsoft’s published guidelines. This has been corrected.
- CSM order bill-to names were not being automatically populated upon creation. This has been corrected.
